Q.41 Read the following passage carefully and answer the given questions.

Arun wants to open a retail mart. He is thinking over the selection of the best financing alternative. He made an estimation that Rs. 40 lakhs, is an adequate amount of money to start the venture. He is planning to finance the business by investing Rs. 25 lakhs of his own money and the rest would be financed by debts. He is very careful about the future cash-flow in the business because the cost of raising funds from external sources is significant. He is working out to ensure that enough funds are available at the right time. If adequate funds are not available, the firm will not be able to honour its commitments and carry out its plans. On the other hand, if excess funds are available, it will unnecessarily add to the cost and may encourage wasteful expenditure. Since it will be a trading business, it needs lower investment in fixed assets. Since Arun is planning to initiate the business from a small level, the quantum of inventory and debtors required is generally low.

What would be the total capital requirement of the business?

1. Rs. 25,00,000

Q.49 Read the following passage carefully and answer the given questions.

A new company is thinking of launching its product in an already established industry, but before that, the company wants to test the acceptance of the product in the market. Thus, the company decided to distribute free samples and collect responses about the product from the consumers. On analysing the data received from the sampled consumers, the following observations were noted:

1. The company charges low prices compared to their competitors in the market. This is done by the company to capture market share.
2. The company should use impersonal forms of communication to reach more audiences.
3. The company must focus on adopting a three-level channel of distribution.
4. Concrete steps must be taken to monitor the image of the company in the eyes of the public.

Identify the correct set of intermediaries involved in a three-level channel of distribution.
