Q.1 Read the given passage and answer the four questions that follow :-

India's space programme has once again proven its ingenuity and determination with the launch of its first space docking mission. The Space Docking Experiment (SpaDeX) represents more than just a technological milestone - it underscores the nation's aspirations to become a major player in the global space race. This achievement not only cements India's position among elite nations like the United States, Russia, and China but also opens new doors for innovation, collaboration, and economic growth in the space sector. The development and testing of in-space docking technology signals a significant advancement in India's capabilities.

Space docking is a complex process requiring high precision, and mastering it is critical for missions that involve assembling large structures in orbit or servicing satellites. The technology will also play a pivotal role in the future operations of space stations and potential deep-space explorations. For a country committed to creating indigenous solutions for its ambitious space goals, this is a step in the right direction. This mission underscores India's growing ability to combine innovation with sustainability, transforming challenges into opportunities. Re-purposing space debris as a laboratory highlights a forward-thinking approach that benefits both science and the environment. The ingenuity of this mission is further demonstrated by ISRO's decision to re-purpose the fourth stage of the launch vehicle as an orbital laboratory.

As India continues to reach for the stars, SpaDeX is a reminder of the nation's potential to innovate and lead.

Why is mastering space docking considered critical?

1. It enables assembling large structures in orbit or servicing satellites.
2. It eliminates the need for ground control in space missions and docking.
3. It prevents space debris from forming in orbit with high precision.
4. It simplifies the construction of launch vehicles to reach the stars.

Options 1. 1

2. 2

3. 3

4. 4

Q.5 Read the given passage and answer the four questions that follow .-

Are you ready to polish your conversation skills? Do you want to know the most important and ultimately the most interesting subject in the world that any person would love to talk about with you? Ready? Okay. Here it is: The key is simple: talk about the most important subject to anyone-themselves. People love to talk about their lives, interests, and experiences. When you centre conversations around others, they'll be drawn to you.

Think of a social event where someone talked only about themselves. Was it enjoyable? Probably not. Now recall someone who focused on you, asking about your life and showing genuine interest. Which person would you prefer to spend time with?

To be a sought-after conversationalist, shift from using "I," "my," and "mine" to "you" and "your." For example, say: "How are you today?" "What are your thoughts on this?" "Is there anything I can help you with?" "This subtle shift can significantly increase your influence and appeal.

Another powerful tip is to encourage others to talk about themselves. Ask open-ended questions like: "How is everything going?" "What have you been up to since we last met?" "How is your family doing?"

Show true interest and listen actively. When people feel valued and heard, they'll naturally enjoy your company. Stop focusing on yourself. Instead, prioritize the person you're talking to. By doing so, you'll build stronger connections and leave a positive, lasting impression.

A key tip for successful conversations is to ____

1. share stories about yourself
2. speak less and listen actively
3. avoid asking open-ended questions
4. keep the interaction short

Options 1. 1

2. 2

Q.9 Read the given passage and answer the four questions that follow :-

An old beggar cried for alms at the gate. They told her not to pester them when they were engaged in a snake-hunt. On hearing it, the old woman became happy." You are fortunate. It is God Subramanya who has come to visit you. Don't kill the snake". Mother was in hearty agreement: -"You are right. I forgot all about the promised abhishekam. This is a reminder."

She gave a coin to the beggar, who promised to send down a snake-charmer as she went. Presently an old man appeared at the gate and announced himself as a snake-charmer. They gathered around him. He spoke to them about his life and activities and his power over snakes. They asked admiringly :- "How do you catch them? Thus," He said, pouncing upon a hypothetical snake on the ground. They pointed to the direction in which the cobra had gone and asked him to go ahead. He looked helplessly about and said: "f you show me the snake. I'll at once catch it. Otherwise, what can I do? "He gave his name and address and departed. At five in the evening, they threw away their sticks and implements and retired to the veranda to rest. They had turned up every stone in the garden and cut down every grass-blade and shrub so that the tiniest insect coming into the garden should have no cover.

Mother gave a coin to the beggar as a reward because ____

1. she was moved by a deep sense of pity for the poor beggar
2. the beggar had done her a great favour by reminding her about the abhishekam
3. she was pleased to hear the views of the beggar about the snake
4. the beggar was destitute and really in need of immediate help
